High-energy confinement boundary in the sampled launch grid

Dots are calculated states. Brackets join only adjacent sampled energies for one exact launch with different outcomes; no continuous boundary is inferred.